

Department Girl is the third full collection of poetry from Argentinian poet, Aleli Manrique. Written in Buenos Aires, Department Girl contains 40 poems covering 21st Century life in the South American country from growing up, looking for love, running into exs, dreaming of England, listening to Joy Division and drinking summer morning coffee. A bohemian collection of poetry is both melancholic and youthful. Translated from Spanish by Laura Garcia and published exclusively by Dead Ink. Aleli Manrique lives in Buenos Aires, Argentina. She studied at Casa de Letras (School of Writing and Orality) and Buenos Aires University (UBA) and took classes with Arturo Carrera and Daniel Durand among others. She is the Editor of Ediciones Encendidas and her published word includes the poetry collections Mucho Fantasma (2008) and Lunes (2011).
