

Richard the Third (Classic Reprint)

III RICHARD III. INTRODUCTION. This play was entered on the Stationers Register to Andrew Wise, 20th Oct. 1597, and the 1st Quarto edition of it the Facsimile of which is here given was published by him that same year, As it hath been lately Acted by the Right honourable the Lord Chamberlaine his seruants. It will be seen that no authors name appears on the title page of this 1st edition :in the 2nd edition (Q2) 1598, it is said to be By William Shakespeare. A third edition (Q3) was published in 1602, its title differing in no respect from Q2 except in stating that it was Newly augmented ;but neither in this nor in any subsequent Q. is any addition to be found to the text of the two first Qos. It differs from them only in a very large increase of errors, which (it may be added) are mostly left uncorrected in the subsequent Qos. A fourth edition (Q4) appeared in 1605 ;a fifth (Q5) in 1612 ;a sixth (Q6) in 1622 ;a seventh (Q7) in 1629; and an eighth (Q8) in 1634; each Q. upwards being printed from its immediate predecessor, with the exception of Q5, which was printed not from Q4 but from Q3.1 The above particulars are taken from the Preface to the Play in Vol. V. of the Cambridge edition of Shakespeare s Works, where also full bibliographical details, not needed here, will be found. It is on the basis of the complete collation, given in the Cambridge edition, of all the old copies that my work is founded, occasional reference only having been needed to the original editions themselves. With this acknowledgment I must also express my sense of the deep debt of gratitude which all lovers of Shakespeare owe to the labours of Messrs. W. G. Clark and W. Aldis Wright: my admiration of their great work has increased with my almost daily use of it since its publication, 1863-66. II do not presume to dispute this last statement of the Cambridge editors; but the collati(Typographical errors above are
