

Of Ships and Stars.: Maritime Heritage and the Founding of the National Maritime Museum, Greenwich

Of Ships and Stars provides a full historical account of the development of the National Maritime Museum in Greenwich. Using all available public records, it places the story of the museum in the context of the social and political history of Britain from the 1920s to the millennium. It examines such diverse subjects as British imperialism and the part played by national museums and galleries in reflecting national identity; the changing role of the Navy; the art market and the world Depression of the 1930s; the growth of mass society, leisure and tourism; and the increasing influence of management and government policy.
