

A Boatload of Guns

In the fall of 2011, a delusional substitute teacher from northern Vermont falls in love with a fictional Cuban pen-pal and embarks on a mission to liberate Cuba by delivering a boatload of guns to the islands weaponless public. Alfonso Quinones de Vermonite enlists the help of his social media-obsessed friend, Pancho Santos, and his vintage Harley, Poderosa, and together they take off on a journey from Vermont to Miami. Along the way, they are mistaken for guerrilla marketers and become inadvertently associated with Occupy Wall Street, the Tea Party movement, an energy drink marketing campaign, and Senator Bernie Sanders. This is Alfonso's Cuban revolution. This is Pancho's Twitter revolution. This is Senator Sanders Political Revolution.
