

MacMurther

The Cursed Shakespeare Play is More Cursed as a Movie on a Shoestring Budget A converted screenplay about what happens when an ambitious novice director, Diane, takes a small army of volunteers to a secluded island mansion to film her version of William Shakespeares Macbeth. At first, it seems like just accidents. Then the cast and crew start to realize that they are being set up. Bombs, booby traps, and assault with insects, Diane does everything she can think of to keep more people from dying while her dedicated cast and crew refuse to give up on the production. The death toll climbs, a love triangle triangulate, and an apparition appears. And youll never guess who the murderer is! Well, maybe you will. I dont know. You might be lucky like that. Read as the characters endure heartbreak, death, jealousy, and battle, all while doing everything they can think of to make sure Shakespeares gruesome tragedy makes its way on film . . . again. Patrick is a creative singer, songwriter, and actor largely regarded as an unmanly milquetoast. Stacy is his callous but caring ex-girlfriend with a long and monstrous history, if you believe her. Diane is the intelligent, beautiful, and charismatic director, who charms a large team of volunteers on her production team. Jeremy is her zealous assistant director. Tiffany is Dianes amorous and lovesick best friend, who is desperate to be with someone, anyone. Seriously, is any guy going to get with her? Steve may or may not be the best prop master. Where is he anyway? Inspired by several tragedies and comedies by William Shakespeare. About the Author Spencer Russell humbly submits his freshman effort at publishing. More books to come!
