

The End of the Line (South Africa Book 2)

The past is another country A story based on fact in the dark days of grand apartheid, but with the rich promise and hope that a new South Africa can bring. Everything in the book could have happened... and perhaps it did! SEA AND SAND Sea and sand My love My land, God bless Africa Sea and sand My love My land, God bless Africa But more the South of Africa Where we live.... Bless the angry mountains And the smiling hills Where the cool water spills To heal the earths brow Bless the children of South Africa The white children And the black children But more the black children Who lost the sea and the sand That they may not lose love For white children Whose fathers raped the land.... Sea and sand My love My land, God bless Africa Many sunsets Gold and crimson Have dripped on the horizon, Weeping for the dying day. Many dawns have risen In timely resurrection From their cradles of light Sunsets and dawns Dawns and sunsets I have seen them all But when, Oh when will I see that day When love will walk the common way To heal my wounded people And break the shackles around their hearts? - Don Mattera. I love that poem. This is Craig Locks first novel. A short novel set in the beloved country. A passionate and heart-breaking tale of South Africa, a true story of the bad old days, but with the hope of the new. THE END OF THE LINE The End Of The Line could be described as a faction, a fiction with a serious factual grounding. It is simple, and therefore moving. It gives yet another highly individual portrait of that troubled land, and it does so through a believable and sustained narrative form. - Minerva Press AUTHORS NOTE Whilst this story is largely based on fact (especially Part One), Parts Two and Three are fiction based on actual events in South Africa. People in the literary world call this form of writing faction (fiction + facts). I have changed some names, so that any resemblance to persons, living or dead, is purely co-incidental. This book is dedicated to the diverse peoples of South Africa who one day will live in harmony, peace and prosperity in the beloved and beautiful country in spite of their great differences and the divisions of the past. I hope to one day be able to see that happen. I would like to thank my beloved and wonderful wife Marie, a New Zealander with a great love for Africa, for the love, help, support and encouragement in writing this manuscript. She also unselfishly gave me the opportunity to indulge in any creative talents that I may have. Here on the other side of the world, it has not been easy yearning for the magic of South Africa, its vastness and even the smell of the air. So Marie, thanks for helping to lift me in my down days as well as your large contribution with this work as well as the tiresome task of proof-reading. Thanks also to Birgitta of Minerva Press for her excellent proof reading. I have used a number of unique South African words and expressions. I have put the translation in brackets for foreign readers. Also thank you New Zealand, another beautiful but vastly different country for offering me the peace and tranquillity to write. The inspiration came from my heart. Gisborne, New Zealand. October 1993.
